Re: DOD Innovative Readiness Training proposal at Sand Point

When I met with you and the consultants from Peyser Associates in December about funding opportunities for Sand Point development, I mentioned that we had been working on a proposal for the Department of Defense Innovative Readiness Training program. I am enclosing a packet of materials that gives some background on the program, indicates a website that may give you more information, and a copy of a letter from Ken Bounds to the State Adjutant general about our interest in the program.

Peter Lukevich, with Lake City Consulting Services, has been coordinating this effort for Parks and Recreation. Over the past several months he has met with staff of the congressional delegation. I joined him in a meeting with Ardis Dumett in Senator Murray's office in March.

We have not received a reply from the Adjutant General but expect to in the next several weeks. Please call me (4-8369) if you have any questions.
